"ALOFT"

Here in the wind washed skies we've come upon a spirit new,
Heard a strange faith speak above the throbbing fury of our fragile wings.
A faith not known as we crawled in dust so far beneath this blue,
It stalked our souls, relentless, flight by light, that we might know the eerie thrill it brings.

We've taunted pygmy men whose souls are chained to earth.
Theirs is not to know the foam of clouds as a haven for your cares.
We climb such miles to breast the fury of the wind, to seek the lightning's birth.
So free, untouched, sons born of the elements, we soar beside their very prayers.

Pushing back the velvet of the night we've strained to reach the stars;
Come so near their cold hard splendor, their dust became new lights upon our wings.
Alone amid this vaulted mystery, we cringe before this might,
Aware of the little that is ours,
Yet, devout before this Majestic throne we sense perfection, that over-all plan behind all things.

Blades biting deep leave an ever glistening arc before our eyes.
These silver discs, unfaltering, a symbol of our hope, becomes a mystics' ball.
Within their realms we read the phantom future, free as these our skies—
A world swept free of webs called hate—war scars healed, no future youth to fall.

You reckon not the strength o f these new men you see before you,
Tortured souls were left as we fled your realms—we take our being beyond your strife.
Our craft, as if a mortal ruled by time, may fall, a flame across the blue.
It must plummet, a meteor alone, our soul shall remain aloft to claim this secret hall of life.

LELAND L. ZIMMERMAN

Who is this guy they're looking for Whenever I go flying It's Roger this and Roger that—Until I think He's dying.

It seems unfair that a guy like him
Should get so much attention
But every time I listen in That name of his is mentioned.

I've racked my brain to know the guy
Somehow he must be found
If but to satisfy the man
Who yells his name around.

They want him bad, of that I'm sure
Could be that He's a dodger,
Cause every time I ask to land
That man, he just says "Roger."

DEDICATION

To the glorious day when hostilities have ceased . . . when peace will prevail throughout the world and man will again seat himself rightfully in the home . . . content with a job well done, secure in Democracy and their trust in God. We of Class 43-I pledge our every effort to the future and victory.

COLONEL GEORGE F. HARTMAN

A real man and leader, has made possible for each and every one of us the excellent training which we have received in our advanced phase of Pilot Training.

Our mere words can never express how much his enthusiasm and endeavor has or will mean to us. Our desire is to live up to his faith he has in us and to make the Army Air Force proud of 43-I.

TACTICAL OFFICERS

I'm sure each of us at some time or other, has silently cursed the Tactical Officers, but I'm also certain that they have been praised just as often.

They had a job to do and it was a tough one. Keeping a group of Gadgets on the well known ball, isn't easy. We all realize now, that what was done, was primarily for our benefit. When things went wrong, the Tactical Officers could always be counted on to take our side of the problem and see what could be done. I don't think punishment was ever too severe, and I know that we are better men and soldiers because of their influence.

RIP CORD, BUT IT DIDN'T OPEN
